BRET HARTEN STORY. deal Courtship at One-Horse Gutch.

[In Mr. Harto's new serial story in Scribner's Monthly for December, the hero, Gabriel Conroy, gives to his sister the following appropriate account of his mairimonial:]

Olly had drawn a small hox, her favorlie seat, between her brother's legs, and rested the back of her head comfortably against his waistcoat. When Gabriel had lighted his pipe at the solitary candle, he gave one or two preliminary puffs,
and then, taking his pipe from his mouth,
stid sendy:

and men, taking his pipe it of a said gently;
"Olly, it can't be done," Gabe?" queried be artial Olly, with a swift preconception of the answer, expanding her little month into a thoughtful smile.
Thet thing. This yer marryin' o' Mrs. Markie," said Gabriel, with an assumption of easy, maincealike indifference.
"Why?" asked Olly.
"She wouldn't have me."
"What?" said Olly, facing swiftly stound.

Cabriel evaded his sister's eyes, and, looking in the fire, repeated slowly, but with great firmness:

"No; not tur-fur-fur a gift!"

"She's a mean, stuck-up, horrid old thing and Olly fiercely.

"I'd jest like to man as kin compare with you, Gabe! Like her impulsance."

dence!"
Cabriel waved his pipe in the air deprecatingly, yet with such an air of cheerful resignation that Olly faced upon him again supiciously, and asked:
"What did she say?"
"She said," replied (tabe slowly, "that her heart—was—given—to—another. I think she atruck into poetry, and said:

Ny beart it is another's,
And it never can be thine.

That is, I think so, I disremember her special remark, Olly; but you know women allers spout thought a seech times.

Who was it?" said Olly suidenly.

"She didn't let on who," said Gabriel unsaily, and shifted his position. "Well," he repeated.

"What did you say?" said Olly.

"Then?"

"No, afore. How did you do it, Gabe?"
"No, afore. How did you do it, Gabe?"
comfortably fixing her chin in her hands,
and looking up in her brother's face.
"Oh, the usual way!" said Gabriel,
with a motion of his pipe, to indicate the yarra and official to the control of the pipe.

DR. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are so compounded from concentrated principles, extracted from concentrated principles, extracted from roots and herbs, as to combine in each small granule, scarcely larger than a mustard seed, as much eather-tie power as is contained in any larger pills for sale in drug stores. They are not only pleasant to take, but their operation is easy—unattended with any griping pain. They operate without producing any constitutional disturbance. Unlike other catherites, they do not render the bowels costive after operation, but, on the contrary, they establish a permanently healthy action. Being entirely vegetable, no particular care is required while using them. $500 Reard is offered by the Proprietor to any one who will detect in these Pellets any calgined or other form of mercury, mineral poison, or injurious drug.
